A Portal to support host country governments with planning, negotiating, implementing, and monitoring large-scale investments.

The aim of the Portal is to improve the accessibility and visibility of useful tools and resources, including technical support, available to assist host governments with planning, preparing, negotiating, monitoring, and implementing large-scale investment projects in the extractive industries, land and agriculture, and infrastructure sectors.
The Portal includes:

- A roadmap that visually lays out the investment process, with a brief description of what should happen at each stage, featured tools and resources, and links to support providers.
- A searchable database of support providers that provide technical assistance on the investment process on a not-for-profit basis to host governments. The database includes detailed information about each provider including the types of support, sector, and stage at which such support is available.
- A repository of tools and resources to better inform and guide governments at each stage of the investment process.
- A list of short-term training and professional development courses for government officials and policy makers in relation to one or more stages of the investment process in the extractive industries, land and agriculture, or infrastructure sectors.

For assistance in locating a tool, resource, or support provider, please contact us at ccsi@law.columbia.edu.

The CCSI also welcomes all feedback, comments, suggestions, and updates to the Portal.

This Portal has been endorsed by the G-7’s CONNEX Initiative to Strengthen Assistance for Complex Contract Negotiations.
